

RAF memorial room. Skarrild – Karstoft Museum.

Skarrild - Karstoft Museum. November 2002.

The museum has a memorial room, where many effects describe the events of the night of August 27th 1944, when a British bomber was shut down and crashed at Sdr. Grene near Skarrild. The seven crewmembers that died in the crash are buried in the churchyard beside the museum. The museum also houses many documents of local historical interest.

RAF memorial room at the museum. Flags from England, Canada and Australia. The seven young airmen buried at the churchyard came from the three countries.

Many pictures and other effects from the past.

RAF memorial room at the museum.

RAF memorial room at Skarrild Museum. Here can be seen many books, pictures and parts from the crashed Lancaster of 630 Squadron.

Door handle from the bomber.

Doorstep from the Lancaster interior.